In connection with Prof. A. J. Henry's statistics as to loss of life and Lightning's Effect resulting from lightning in

Upon Trees. The United States

In 1899, it is interesting to note the results of a recent inquiry by the German government into the effect of lightning upon trees. Observations were made by overseers of for-esting stations scattered over an area of 80,000 acres in the district of Lippe.

The forests comprised 70 per cent. of beech trees, 13 per cent. of pines, 11 per cent. of oaks, and six per cent.

of firs. Of 275 trees struck by lightning 58 per cent. were oak, 21 per cent. fir, eight per cent. beech and seven per cent. pine. These figures, says the Chicago Tribune, show the extreme susceptibility of the oak to lightning stroke, and the large and disproportionate percentage of its attack upon fir. The beech appears to be almost immune from lightning stroke. While 70 per cent. of the forest trees were beeches, they received only eight per cent. of the strokes, or about one-ninth of their proportionate share. It has often been asserted in England that the beech was never struck by lightning. While the German observations disprove this broad assertion, they amply justify the common belief in the rarity of the occurrence. Prof. Henry observes that the zone of danger from lightning extends over several feet, and cites instances to show the error of the prevalent opinion that it extends but a few inches. Five hundred and sixty-two persons were killed and 820 injured by lightning in the United States in 1899. The most common form of disability from the stroke is partial paralysis.

It's the proper thing now for the amorous swain to send a pair of love birds to his innamorata, says a Philadelphia dealer, who has them for sale at ten dollars a pair, including the cage.

Love birds are charming little things.

They come from China and Java, where they are as plentiful as the English sparrow is here. In fact, they resemble the sparrow in build, although they are pure white and have quite large beaks of a delicate pink. They are very affectionate, and will sit for hours pressed closely against each other on their perch, billing and cooing in fine style. The dealer, who is a florist, says in confidence that he has them on sale because flowers are too common in summer for the young men to send the girls, and he thought the love birds would just about fill the bill.

The war in China has been a disappointment to a number of this year's graduates of eastern colleges, who had received appointments in the Chinese customs service, and who were to report in Peking in August. The appointments, says the New York Post, were made a year ago, and the young men had a year in which to complete their college courses. Their salaries were to begin as soon as they started for China, and were to continue during the two years allowed them to master the Chinese language. After three years' service the inspectors were to have two years' vacation at half pay.

A Pensioner's Grief.

A New York pensioner was lamenting the death of an old comrade.

"Poor fellow," he sighed, "how shall I get on without him?"

"Were you much attached to him?"

asked a friend.

"It is not exactly that, sir," he replied, "but you see, he had lost his left leg, and I have lost my right.

We shared a pair of boots between us, and it will be very difficult to find another in the hospital whose feet are the same size."—Harlem Life.

In Due Form.

"Mr. Nevergo," the young woman said, suppressing a yawn, "when the business of a meeting is ended what is the parliamentary form for bringing the proceedings to a close?"

"Somebody moves that the meeting adjourn," replied the young man, "and then—"

"Well, if you'll move," she interrupted, "we'll adjourn."—Chicago Tribune.
